Malaysia Anti-Corruption Academy (MACA)

MACA, the first of its kind in the Asia-Pacific region acts as a principal anti-corruption training center was established in 1 December 2005. It is also as a regional hub for anti-corruption capacity and capability building to fight corruption by promoting best practices in investigation, prevention and venturing in new areas such as forensic accounting and forensic engineering.

Many international institutions and organizations have agreed to cooperate with Malaysia in developing anti-corruption programmes including conducting the courses, trainings, seminars and workshops annually that would cater for the Asia Pacific region. This is made possible through the bilateral and multilateral networking with other enforcement agencies in the region such as the ICAC Hong Kong, FBI, BMR Brunei Darussalam, KICAC (Republic of Korea), CPIB Singapore, NACC Thailand and many others.

The establishment of this academy reflects the seriousness and commitment of the Malaysian government to combat corruption and also as part of its contribution to the international community in the global fight against corruption.
